HOMEWORK

- Assignments should be geared to the age and abilities of individual students.
- Home conditions of individual students should be considered in connection with assignments that will have to be completed there.
- Teachers should not feel obliged to give daily homework assignments.
- Homework should be corrected carefully soon after completion of the work, and returned to the students.
- Assignments should be guided by diocesan and school suggestions as to the time limits for homework at various age and ability levels. If an individual student habitually exceeds the time allotments, the teacher should determine the causes and give consideration to these in future assignments.
